It is what it says....CUTEBy TH1028Being a person who hates terrible grammar, the little 'sayings' on the pages can be a bit annoying at times (for example: "kitech"). However, the pictures are, of course, adorable. Great for girls, or anyone who wants to brighten up their workday with a daily dose of 'awwww' Weekends are a bonus, as there's 2 pictures on one page (Saturday and Sunday combined). The pages are of good quality, and they are made to be used as notepaper once they're torn off (they don't have that strange shiny coating). Even the base that holds the calendar (which is kind of a pink shade of plastic) is recyclable, which is a nice touch. The calendar also comes with a code for a free online Page-A-Day version of your choice.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Cuteness for a better worldBy A GreyI firmly believe the world would be a better place if everyone started their day looking at videos of baby sloths in pajamas cuddling or floating otters holding hands. Photos of smiling owls and wide-eyed Golden Retriever puppies? Yep, less war, fewer incidences of spousal abuse, banana splits for everyone. I, for one, have proven beyond a doubt that my world is now, officially, 4.1% happier because of cuteoverload.com.However, my 70-year-old mother is not down with the whole 'computer' thing. So, I am giving this product five-stars for a) fostering world peace and b) allowing my non-laptop-addicted mother to get the benefits of teh cute without the eye strain.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Disappointed.By B.GerkeMy friend had the 2011 calendar, and I was jealous, so I made sure that this was my page-a-day for 2012. Except now I'm completely disappointed. Bugs, birds, and (most) rodents -- not cute. There's been more than one day

I've had to tear the page off early because whatever un-cute thing was on that day was grossing me out so bad I couldn't bear to look at it. Plus the captions are so lame. Not pleased, CuteOverload. Not pleased at all.

So cute it's redonkulous. The bestselling calendar adapted from the blog annointed "#1 Mood Lifter" (Time magazine), Cute Overload proves that there's nothing like a sweet animal face to bring happiness and smiles. Who knew cute comes in so many guises? Feast your soul on prosh bunny rabbits. Roly-poly hamsters. Cuddly kittens by the basketful. Puppy dog eyes to the max. Plus ducklings, penguins, ferrets, lovably goofy pandas, prickly hedgies, wobbly-legged lambs, and teeny-weeny caterpillars. Witty captions enhance the awww factor even more. Includes the Rules of Cuteness (#38: Curved, plump bellehs are cute).
