WechterThis limerick book is quite amazingAfter my preliminary appraisingThe delectable drawingsWere quite awe-inspiringAs was all the well-written phrasing.

What does an internal medicine physician do when diagnosed with a life-threatening cancer? She uses laughter. Join Carrie on her journey from diagnosis to recovery and encounter her stalwart, irreverent, and just plain funny response to the indignities of having toxic chemicals poured into her body. For anyone who has undergone cancer treatment or who is embarking on their own unwanted journey, this book will provide sympathetic, light-hearted companionship and produce giggles, belly laughs and a guffaw or two along the way.

About the AuthorCarrie Horwitch is an internal medicine physician who takes care of patients across the spectrum of ages. She is also an HIV care specialist. In addition to her profession she is a Laughter Leader and teaches the benefits of laughter in medicine both locally and nationally.
