They are a great way to brighten your day and give you something seriously bizarre and creative to think about.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A book for creative minds!By Art MawkinPicasso said "Art is the lie that enables us to realize the truth." In that fashion MJ Guns brings us Lies that are artfully pointing us to truths. Masterful lies that are more awakening to the brain and soul than Luminosity could ever be! Crafted lies that wake up the creativity inside anyone who dares to read them. You are in for a treat! Read it!

"The western coast of the Bering Strait is made out of chocolate." "James Kingswell, a high school teacher in the late 1930s, was the first person on record to be able to lick his own eyebrow." "Cocker spaniels can rotate their heads 720°, but only in one direction." "Nitroglycerin was originally used as a spice for tacos." These are examples of the delicious nuggets of misinformation packed into the pages of this book. There are 365 of them; one for each day of the year. Read through each one a day at a time, blow through them all at once, or use the handy (and thorough) index to find a lie about nearly any topic, from abbreviations to zoos. A lie for every occasion! A misdirect for each day! A saddle for every ferret! Of course you can ride a ferret! Approximately 44 hamsters died in their hamster wheels in order to transmit this message to your computer.

About the AuthorM. J. Guns is a monster. He drinks an excessive amount of island coffee from a steel mug forged in a pit of uncertainty and misdirection. It's not clear whether it's the effects of this mug or the result of hyper-caffeination (probably a bit of both), but he regularly shoots his mouth off without warning... or any discernible filters. A lover of ellipses, horrible puns, and parenthetical asides, M. J. happily travels the world of imagination... a nomad who isn't mad (or angry).
