Corporations:

If you save 50% of your income every year from age 20 until you turn 70, you can retire rich. But who wants to do that?!? There has to be a better way! It didn't take Carl of Los Angeles years to jump-start his retirement savings. He put his hand under the wheel of a parked car as it was trying to drive away. He was awarded more than $70 thousand by a jury. That's a much bigger payoff than Carl was expecting from his "auto work." The hub-caps he was trying to steal from the car in question would not have brought nearly that much. How long would it normally take to save seventy grand working at a dead-end job and eating leftover pizza? Who cares! That's not the life you want! It isn't the life that Jason, from Idaho, wanted either. He dreamt of a life of fun and partying. A life where he could stick his bare butt out the window in order to amuse his friends. He got everything he wanted and plus a cushy payout of nearly a million dollars when he lost his footing and fell backward through that window. You see, there was no warning sign to tell Jason that it is dangerous to hang backward and naked from an upper window, and that's just not fair. Jason taught them a lesson and now he's rich. And you can be too! You don't have to be talented, lucky, clever, or hard working to get a jury to sympathize with you. In fact, it helps if you're none of those! Yes, our legal system might just be your way to an early retirement with minimal effort. This book will show you what thousands of people across the country already know: everything bad that happens might be worth millions to you . . . and bad stuff happens all the time! Just read how these folks got big bucks for bad luck: =>Terry in Pennsylvania locked himself in his neighbors' garage for eight days while trying to steal their valuables. He sued for more than $500 thousand. => Larry from Chicago got $75 thousand when he discovered that the bar window he was trying to climb in had been electrified in o
