Pat Gould : Someone Has To Tell The Stories before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Someone Has To Tell The Stories:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great book for leaders of youth By L. Golliglee I loved the book. Mr. Gould touched my heart and stirred memories of things that have happened during my time as a Den leader. This book does tell the stories. This book not only shares the stories but also gives enough detail of the event that it is full of many great take-aways that you can also use in your program. Read the book and you will start to recall those memories of youth you have helped coach to meet their potential. Thank you Mr. Gould for sharing your stories :)

This collection of 50 stories is truly charming. These funny accounts are a very easy, comfortable read. The author relates these personal experiences in a most heartwarming way. The lessons learned shared in this book reveal wonderful insights and compassion for kids. Although they are based on actual events from working with boys in the Cub Scout and Boy Scout programs, there are life lessons to be learned by anyone that works with youth. Since Pat Gould is really just a kid at heart, he shows how learning from children has enriched his life. If you are planning on working with children in the future, it will give you some great tools. If you are currently serving children, it will give you hope. If you have helped kids in the past, it will give you joy, as you will relate to these stories. The author's passion for youth is evident as his vivid style of writing almost brings these stories to real life. This is positively an incredible collection and you will be happier for having read them.

About the Author Pat Gould received his Eagle Scout Award in 1966. After a long absence from Scouting he returned as a Cub Scout leader in 1997 when his oldest son Grant. He now continues this working with kids at the Cub Scout level with his youngest son Jared.
