By Catherine Elizabeth We own all the Baby Blues books. The parents kids in the strip are funny because they're grounded in the loud, smelly, dirty, loving, sleepless, happy reality of having raising children. The strips are mostly outright hilarious. They are sometimes poignant, but never sappy or preachy. There is no overarching "soap opera" filled with angst, as is found in many similar strips. These strips are just fun, funny, funniest. Our elementary-age son loves them, also. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Kindle Customer #10 of 0 people found the following review helpful. BB #21 By Robyn Clough I love the Baby Blues series from beginning to present, it never fails to make me laugh. I can relate to so much of it! Glad I got to find all of the books on for great prices to read through the ones I never read!

Rick Kirkman and Jerry Scott put out a very funny cartoon strip. You don't have to be a parent to enjoy this cartoon, but if you are, it hits close to home more than once. It's also nice watching the kids get older (albeit slowly) in a medium that seldom allows its characters to age at all. "If art imitates life, then art could probably use a good vacuuming. That is, if you're talking about life around the MacPherson house. With three kids under the age of eight, things couldn't get much busier for Darryl and Wanda, who fill the comics pages with dead-on family humor. Creators Rick Kirkman and Jerry Scott have a special talent for distilling the essence of children, families, and married couples into a comic strip that, in frame after frame and strip after strip, creates a world that's both amusing and enlightening, in large part because their work mirrors our own experiences so closely. "Did you see the latest Baby Blues?" is one of the most-often asked questions among the strip's millions of fans. "It looks just like us!"
