Need an icebreaker?By Sweetie Pie 46This was written in the earlier part of the 20th century, but it is as humorous today as it may have been when first published! The author is rather tongue in cheek when he addresses the fact that operations seem to be a conversation starter regardless of whether those present are familiar or total strangers. It was quite enjoyable, and I would recommend it to anyone with a penchant for wry humor.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy denny clevengerSo much of this is true even today, almost 100 years later

This scarce antiquarian book is a facsimile reprint of the original. Due to its age, it may contain imperfections such as marks, notations, marginalia and flawed pages. Because we believe this work is culturally important, we have made it available as part of our commitment for protecting, preserving, and promoting the world's literature in affordable, high quality, modern editions that are true to the original work.

About the AuthorTony Sarg was famous as a master puppeteer, a cartoonist, and an author/illustrator of more than a dozen children's books during the 1920s and 1930s. He was the person responsible for developing the flying helium character balloons used in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day parades. Sarg opened children's shops in New York, Nantucket, and New Hope in Buck's County, where he sold textiles, wallpapers, rugs, and furniture of his own design.Jonathan Adler has his own design and furniture stores in New York City, East Hampton, Miami, Los Angeles, and Chicago.
