Laura Roodman-Edwards-Ray : Still Brain Dead Cooking before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Still Brain Dead Cooking:

Laura has written either the funniest of cookbooks or the most appetizing of memoirs... this book is filled with funny, wise, and mouth-watering treats that range from the adventures of Grandma Joanie's Famous Meatballs to the Top Ten Things You Will Never See in Branson, Missouri. Enjoy!

About the Author Laura Roodman Edwards Ray lives in a suburb of St. Louis, Missouri with her two daughters, her loving husband, and a stepson close by. She is a full-time mom, law firm sales representative, co-producer/co/director of Listening to Your Mother - St. Louis, speaker, and author. She is currently finishing the third volume of her twisted trilogy called "Forever Brain Dead" and plans on making it an annual occurrence if anyone would like to continue reading the strange stories of her life and pick up great recipes at the same time. She still welcomes anyone from the "Smoking Gun" or any other "truthful literary agency" to try to prove that her memoirs are made up all the time. That would be a lot less embarrassing to her, as well as to her family.
