Batton Lash : Tales of Supernatural Law before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Tales of Supernatural Law:

The cases will be defended by the law firm of Wolff Byrd, the Counselors of the Macabre. On the docket today is Tales of Supernatural Law. Case #001- A twist on the Curse of the Monkey's Paw legend when a beloved family pet is wished back from the dead, things don't turn out as they should. Case #002- The Curse of the Were-House, a lovely two-story home that turns into a haunted house every full moon. Case #003- A civil case involving zombie workers who've decided to go on strike. Case #004- The People Vs. Common Decency... A horror TV host from the 1950s on the verge of a comeback is accused of promoting juvenile delinquency. Case #005- A super model is accused of violating the contract with her modeling agency. She is counter-suing that the hot shot behind the agency used magic to change her appearance. Can the team of Wolff and Byrd see to it that the evidence WEIGHS in her favor? Case #006- Dracula, yes THE Dracula, sues the sideshow industry for copyright infringement. Lastly before the court adjourns to sunny San Diego for the annual Lawyer Convention, the Counselors of the Macabre will seek to postpone the sad case of Sodd, The Thing That's an It, a young man tragically turned into a walking pile of foliage. As you can see from this full case load, there are tons of great law stories with a supernatural edge to them. I had read this book years ago when I first discovered the series at my local library. Now that I am collecting the series, I wanted to re-read this collection. I loved it then and I think after my trip down memory lane, I have fallen that much more in love with Supernatural Law. I guess artist/writer/creator Batton Lash has cast a spell on me. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. the author of "Supernatural Law" series is ABSOLUTELY THE BEST!!! By George Phelan Batton Lash, the author of "Supernatural Law" series is ABSOLUTELY THE BEST!!! The artwork is, well, art. The characters are well thought out and drawn with subtle variations of style that fit each one. The stories hold your attention and the word play is enough to delight the most discerning reader as well as anyone looking for a giggle. I rated this book as "No violence", unless you consider someone being transformed by magic as "violence." It is a shame you can only give this five stars. It should be more like fifteen stars. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Buy it for all your lawyer friends, if you have any. By Chicago Slim If you are a lawyer, you will probably find this quite funny in a law school kind of way. If you aren't, you won't get it...

Beware the creatures of the night -They have Lawyers! And these lawyers are Alanna Wolf and Jeff Byrd, Counselors of the Macabre. This collection is volume 1 in the Tales of Supernatural Law graphic novel series.

From Publishers Weekly Alanna Wolff and Jeff Byrd are far from ordinary attorneys. In fact, these "counselors of the macabre" offer their legal services to a rogues' gallery of Hollywood monsters. In Lash's long-running horror/comedy series, even swamp creatures and zombies need lawyers. This collection of the first eight issues of the comic shines thanks to Lash's quirky art style, his knack for a good pun and the sitcom-like premise. Lash mixes genres capably, with few missteps and a pleasant, if not unsurprising, end result. The stories are peppered with silly character moments ("You serve zombies?" "We serve anybody."). Wolff and Byrd also manage to stand out amidst the mutants and monsters, with Byrd serving as a rather dopey foil to his sharp-witted partner. Supernatural Law serves as a refreshing respite from the pretentiousness that's found in mainstream comics these days. Like the best humor comics, Lash's collection proves to be more about fun—whether in the shape of a sultry supermodel or a ghoulish television host—than serious commentary. And that's far from criminal. (Dec.) Copyright © Reed Business Information, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. All rights reserved. From Booklist Lash follows the previous Supernatural Law collections Sonovawitch! (2000), Vampire Brat (2001), and Mister Negativity (2003) not with new work but with some of the comic book's earliest stories. Don't complain. This is delicious stuff. Supernatural Law (ne Wolff Byrd, Counselors of the Macabre) succeeded a strip regularly featured in the National Law Journal (indication that lawyers are people, too) when Lash decided to create stories as well as gags. Attorneys Alanna Wolff, she of the Hokusai-wave hair, and slightly portly Jeff Byrd represent monsters, specters, and other bumpers-in-the-night--and sometimes those afflicted by them. Such as washed-up creature-feature TV host the Biermeister, whose comeback is threatened by censorious "children's advocates." Such as star model Dawn DeVine, authentically spellbound to her wizard of an agent. Such as . . . but you get the picture. Wordplay that just won't stop, Lash's Archie-meets-the-Addams-Family drawing style, and a continuing cast of recurrent clients, fellow lawyers, and others ensure a steady stream of groans, shrieks, moans, and roars--of laughter.
